The China Itlail.

Public Health Bill difficulty has been broken, Much of the trouble has, of Building Ordinance; but of the clauses still left in the Bill, most of the disputable points have now been dealt with, rand most of them have been modified.

On the whole, therefore, the Government have shown themselves to be fairly amenable to reason. Certainly, if the good which results from this Ordinance at all equals the amount of pains and trouble taken over it, the Public Health

Bill ought to prove the most beneficial measure of legislation ever passed in this Colony. The discussion of the Bill in the Council yester ay did not include more than one or two vital points. The right of entry of the officers of the Sanitary Board during an spidemic was conceded in Section 40; and in the light of an extraordinary power, to be exercised daring an emergency, but little objection can be taken to the clause. It gives powers similar to those of house-to house visitation held by the Boards at Home.

After a little discussion as to the scope may be played by it in local legislation, the question of the trapping of house-drains was then seriously entered upon.

The Hom P. Ryrie is to be congratulated upon the sensible, practical, and direct manner in which he grasped and presented this branch of the subject. Ela-horate rules are laid down for the construction and maintenance of house-drains, and penalties are provided for failure to trap and ventilate the same; while nothing is said about the ventilation, the efficiency, or even the existence of public sewers. Last week we were graciously informed that the householder who had failed to connect his house-drain with a would not be proceeded against. This week Mr Ryrie drags out a reluctant confession from the Surveyor General that the ventilation of house-drains and public sewers will be carried out simultaneously. As we previously stated, it would be in the highest degreedangerous for householders to connect their drains with the majority of the public sewers.

under present conditions. It ought, therefore, to have been clearly laid down in the Bill that the Public Works Department should first prove that a public sewer is properly constructed and efficiently ventilated before a householder should be compelled by hiw to do his part. As Mr Ryrie said and no person will think of making provision for ventilating his house-drain until the main sewer is completed, because he is liable, if he does, to get the gas in from the main sewer. The Surveyor General

We understand that Mr Plantagenet Littlewood, who arrived the other day from Java and Australia, where he gave some try successful entertainments, proposes to give an entertainment here shortly, probably some day next week. Mr Littlewood is, we believe, a noted elecutionist, and his programme consists of high-class poetical and dramatic selections, varied with some musical selections. As the Theatre is undergoing repairs, the entertainments willikely be given in the St. Andrew's Hall, but more definite information as to time and place will be given in our advertisement columns later on. Tickets, we bolieve, may meantime be got from Messrs Kelly and Walsh. As it is not very often that Hongkong is visited by a professional elecutionist, and as we need not expect much in this line from our public speakers. we hope Mr Littlewood will be favoured, despite the season of the year, with a large and appreciative audience.

THE case under the new Opium Ordinance recently heard before the Supreme Court in Appellate Jurisdiction and after wards remitted back to the Police Court, where it was originally heard, occupied Mr Wodehouse during the whole of this forenoon. The defendant, it will be remembered, is one Chong Kok, the master of a junk on board of which 40 balls of opium were found on the 10th June for which no. DUTWARD BOUND Sverre, July 20; San licence or permit had been obtained. An appeal was afterwards made to the Supreme Court. The Acting Chief Justice, in giving decision on the appeal, said that if the oplum had come into the defendant's possession after the 1st June the penalty was $500, with the forfeiture of the opium-which would mean altogether a penalty of about $1,000. The penalty for not reporting was Mark of July 29, was to leave Sings simply $500. His Lordship thought that pore on Thursday, the 25th August, at 7 the Magnetrate ought sto have determined under which of the offences the defendant ought to be dealt with, and remitted the to the Magistrate to make a new deter mination. Mr Wodehouse to-day imposed a fine of $500 without ordering the forfeiture of the opium.

THE concluding part of the annual aquat sports under the auspices of the Victoria Recreation Club took place this afternoon. Unfortunately neither the water nor the weather was in any better condition than yesterday. The attendance of spectators, however, was better than on the opening day. Most of the events were well contested and the performances altogether were very good. The following are the results of the competitions :-1 .- 1.00 P.M. - SWIM UNDER WATER. (Two Disappointments may o'ertake us Losses, griefs and grim surprises May assault us in the weathy way we go; Look not back, but onward, over, Lo! the goal before us rises And the valley of the shadow lies below! With a hand to help the fallen, Where the rugged steeps delay us, Though the reddening summits warn us of the night We shall conquer all the evils That assail us and betray us While we keep our faces bravely to the light !

Steady! Keep the ranks in motion! The we only be retrieving The disasters and mistiskes of yesterday; There is shome in dull inaction, There is glory in achieving, If we take one step on the upward way ! Day by day the distance dwindles, Foot by foot the atceps surrender, And we dread no more the barriers over-past a While we breathe the airs screner. And our eyes behold the splendor Of the gates where we shall enter in at last; Wayaide thorns may rend and good us, Driving mist and cloud may blind us, As we strugglo up the last stupendous height But remember, and take courage, All life's shadows til behind us While we keep our faces bravely to the light?"

The dewdrops lie and hi the heart of the grasses.

> Do you remember, Sweet, A summer long ago-A quiet village atrect Its houses all a-row Broad elm trees shading each, Gay woodbine clasping one, A little lawn's clear reach

As like as nost to nest, When-robins-build and sing, With rapture in the breast. Through all the days of spring As like as bud to bud. When early snowdrops glow, Those simple homes that stood Yet never breast of bird But knew its chosen rest, And nover heart that stirred The sweeter for its nest. Twas not the woodbine spray, Nor light of sprinkling flowers-Twas love, with kinding ray. Showed us ours.

Oh, simple were our cares, And all our store of wealth Was daily love and prayers, Clear hope, abiding health Our hearts with youth were light And the burdens of the day The greeting kiss at night Could repay.

These summer days are done, The autumn winds are cold. We shiver in the sun .* Tis late, and we are old ! Already on our sight ---- Heaven's many mansions glow. With luster pure and bright-

I wonder-will it be-- A wide and stately dome. A palace large and free. Where we shall find our home; Or just a sheltered nook, Clasped in the woodbine's fold. With dear familiar look, As of old?

-Idu Whipple Benham. WHAT IS THE OBJECT OF LIFE (Mr Grant Allen, in the New York

From the modern evolutionary point of view, the very question, 'What do we live for I' bocomes, when abstractly regarded in itself superfluous and meaningless, For it implies that everything has an object or purpose; implies, in fact, the old, exploded dogmatic fallacy that the cosmos has been constructed upon a definite plan and with deliberate design, instead of being merely as we now know it to be, the inevitab outcome of unconscious energies. In order to see the true futility of the haked question we need only ask ourselves th exactly analogous and parallel question, What is the object of the nebula in Orion? or 'What do the satellites Saturn revolve for I The obvious answer is, that Orion's nebula and Saturn's moune exist where they are, and act as they do act, not for any profound and hidden cosmical purpose, but simply because, the ceaseless redistribution of matter and motion which constitutes the process evolution; those particular masses of cosmic material were so conditioned as regards envirouing forces and energies that had to move in such or such particular curves or orbits, and in no other. There is no why in the case at all : there is merely the fact, with nothing else behind it.

In the abstract. Tife. as a whole, has no object, any more than the revolution of the planets has an object, or the double refraction of Iceland spar, or the particular flow of the back currents that swirl and eddy below the spray of Niagara: All these things are the necessary outcome of pré-existent conditions their laws of sequence and causation can be investigated and proved: but the idea of an object as applied to them is philosophically inadmissible - for an object implies person who designs, a person who overcomes particular difficulties in the material on which he works, by some particular and cunning arrangement of its parts and organs. But the Power which under lies the universe works on very different lines, indeed, from these. We only degrade it to our own puny level of handicraft by conceiving of it (to use Paley's famous analogy) as we conceive of a watchmaker good for to-day worth my while touching? making a watch. Life is merely one particular set of correlated movements. occurring, under the influence of solar radiation, in a certain peculiar group of material bodies on the surface of one small and unimportant planet, in a minor solar. system, hidden away on the skirts of a Depends if I fancy it.

Looked at from inside, as a question of mere personal conduct life has of course an object of some sort for each individual person | and in so far as the race is made up of individuals, the average object of 'all put together may be looked upon as the object of the entire aggregate. Can we find any such objects common to the vast mass of individuals? Perhaps not. Two only seem to be fairly universal, and those two are to a large extent unconscious. They are, first, self-preservation; and, secondly race-preservation, as shown in the production and care of children. I know this is an unfamiliar view, but it is one-forced upon us by biological considerations. Every species of plant or animal knows, as a species, but one main desire - specific continuation. This desire produces two offeets devices for the preservation of the individual; and devices for the due production and culture of new generations. The sole purposes of humanity, as such, therefore. scoms to be its own continuous perpetuation. . And, in effect, who can doubt that such is really the main central-object of our as objectively given to us in the street, the shop, the house, the factory, do we not see it for ever striving simply, through its millionfold embodiments, for daily bread for itself and its children? Is not hunger the most imperative stimulus of the species. and after hunger, the need for fuel, for fuel, for clothing ! Supply these needs, and what comes next? The instinctive inpulse to take to one's self a wife and family. Every man's first want in life is self maintonance : that attained, his next want is marriage and children. The prof undest ingriened feelings of the race the feelings that prompt, first to preservation of the individual life, next, to the perpetuation and propagation of the species. To some extent, indeed, the last aim, which is the most important for the race as a whole, outweight the first one for parents are frequently, ready to sacrifice themselves on behalf of their children ; an in our existing industrial state a vast nun ber of parents do, more or less completely so sacrifice thomselves, by working harder longer, and more continuously than is at all desirable from the point of view of individual preservation alone.

If human life has any general object at a small island a few miles distant, all-any conscious object present as a rule to the mind of the individual that object. is undoubtedly happiness; and happiness may be approximately defined as a decided surplus of personal pleasure over personal pain. In the species as a whole, no such object is primarily inherent; raco-preservation is its sole generic am and purpose. But masmuch as pleasure, on the whole, roughly coincides with race-preservative activities, and pain on the whole, roughly coincides with face-preservative activities and pain, on the whole, roughly coincides with race-destructive activities, it follows that these two apparently distinct objects, the unconscious generic aim, and the conscious individual aim, are at bottom practically almost identical. In other words what to the race is preservative justinct is to the individual, in nine cases out of ten, the conscious pursuit of his own happiness. His own happiness, I say advisedly but not necessarily to the exclusion of the happiness of others. Quite the contrary : even in the lowest races, some regard for the happiness of wives and pression and faintness at the pit of the ollapring enters into the concept of happine-s for the individual; and among the higher outcomes of the highest races pleasure for others has become a necessary element Measure for self. "One cannot yet say that in humanity , as a whole the object of life as consciously apprehended, includes the idea of equal happiness for all; but an approximation is ever being-made in that direction. Misery for others, especially when brought home to us, suffices to make most mambers of the higher races thoroughly miserable; and the tendency is always to minimise as far as possible such misery, and to equaliso as far as possible al available means of a leasure.

A PAUPER'S DYING REQUEST. An amusing and yet pathetic incident in what the poot Gray called the short and simple annals of the poor, is told by Mr John J. R. Micklejohn, one of the Inspectors of the Poor, at Lerwick, Shetland Islands He says that some time ago an old woman, named Barbara Smith, came under the notice of the Board. She was extremely ill, and it did not look likely She did not reside of the mainland, but on there being no parochial institutions in that place. Barbara necessarily ecoupled the position of a pauper living but trouble from which she suffered dated back many years. In better and more prosperons days she had in some way laid the foundation for Chronic Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and out of this had sprung other complaints as age and bodily mirrorities crept apace upon her. Barbara was not ignorant, albeit she had allen into poverty. In earlier life she somehow obtained the advantage of a fair adjustion and this, added to mative shrewdness, enabled her to use good judgment of respect to her own situation and state of health. Although she had long suffered from asthma and a broughial affection. Barbara was wise enough to see that these ailments arese from the disordered stomach and digestion, and that if the main trouble could be cared the others would soon leave her .- It is probable that her disease began as others do, with the usual symptoms : headaches, bad breath, the rising of sour fluids in the throat, opstomach, loss of sleep, coated tongue, dull eves, bad taste in the mouth, &c., and finally became chronic and hopeless through Occidental & Oriental Steamher not being able to and any remedy. Intimations. THE CHINA REVIEW.

CUBLISHED BI-MONTHLY

THIS Review, which was intended to meet L the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of Notes and Queries on China and Japan, has reached its Fourteenth Volume. The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the 'Far East' and about which every intelligent person con- Brady, W. nected with China or Japan is desirous of Brough. acquiring trustworthy information. It includes many interesting Notes and original | Brown, Miss B. Papers on the Arts, Sciences, Ethnology, Buelack, A Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, and the Far East generally. Recently a new departure has been taken, and the Review now gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Keview in this direction, the Magazine would be mademore generally | Fordham R O.

The Review department receives special attention, and endeavours are made to present a careful and concise record Literature on China etc., and to critiques embodying sketches of the Most recent works on such topics. Authors and Publishers are requested to forward works to Editor, China Review, care of China The Notes and Queries are still continued Jackson, A. H. 2
